

7 May 1963

MEMORANDUM FOR: Emmett Echols, Director, Personnel

FROM: Stanley J. Grogan, Assistant to the Director

1. The Central Intelligence Agency should not in any way promote Mr. Dulles' book by making any official distribution or in any other manner. As Mr. Dulles notes in his foreward, the book was prepared without any official knowledge or approval by the CIA. It would be unethical for the CIA to distribute the commercial product regardless of whether or not the author is a former Director of the CIA.

2. HARPER'S, as well as the ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA, have their own distribution and promotional offices. I am sure either or both would be pleased to make the distribution you think would be helpful to recruiting if they knew to what libraries and selected Departments the reprints should be sent.

Stanley J. Grogan
Assistant to the Director

1180000

1 58480100